++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cold with wintry showers continuing.

Today:
Often cloudy with scattered wintry showers continuing, these sometimes heavy, and most frequent across Norfolk, Suffolk and eastern parts of Essex. Remaining breezy, especially along the coast, and feeling very cold everywhere despite the bright spells. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Tonight:
Occasional showers continuing in the east through the evening, but tending to die away overnight with clearing skies bringing a cold and locally frosty night. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Monday:
A generally dry, bright and frosty start. Cloud increasing through the morning with isolated outbreaks of rain arriving into the afternoon and evening, and freshening winds. Maximum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Tuesday and Wednesday will be windy with showers or longer spells of rain, but generally milder. Into Thursday looking to turn brighter but also cooler, with occasional coastal showers.
